

Bright Spots

Apricity plans to find bright spots where good policies are yielding extraordinary outcomes across all issues and systems – social, technological, economic, environmental, political, and health. Through research, robust data analysis, and machine learning, we will understand fully which factors are contributing to those outcomes. Together with communities that do not yet have access to these policies or solutions, we will engage with the communities themselves to see if, how, and when they may want to implement in a way that makes sense for them.
